Greg Smith joining Devon Funds in the newly created role of Head of Distribution and Strategy

Prior to joining Devon, Greg has been the Head of Research at the Australian based funds management and market research business, Fat Prophets.

Greg has been prominent in the business media for much of the last 20-years, having regularly appeared on business channels such as CNBC and Bloomberg. In New Zealand Greg is a well-recognised market commentator, regularly appearing as a guest speaker on Newstalk ZB, and contributing to stock market-related articles across other media platforms. Prior to his time at Fat Prophets, Greg was a Global Investments operations manager at Mellon Global Investments in London. Greg is a CFA Charterholder as well as a qualified chartered accountant.

Devon Funds Managing Director Slade Robertson says, “Greg has an excellent track record of operating in the financial markets. He will play an important role for us in representing our business across multiple channels with a particular focus on the Financial Adviser networks and retail clients”.
