Research IP Fund Manager of the Year awards 2022 Devon Alpha Fund wins Australasian Equities Fund of the Year award

At the 2022 Research IP Fund Manager of the Year awards last night, Devon's Alpha Fund was named as the winner of the Australasian Equities Fund of the Year.

New Zealand's best fund managers were recognised by the Research IP awards. The categories covered included Sector awards, Adviser and Investor Choice awards, and the major award categories (Responsible Investment, Boutique, KiwiSaver, Longevity, and the overall Fund Manager of the Year Award).

Devon Funds Managing Director, Slade Robertson, commented, "We are proud to announce that the Devon Alpha Fund was voted Australasian Equities Fund of the Year at the Research IP awards. We are delighted to receive the accolade which is a testament to the strong performance delivered by the Devon Alpha Fund this year, and indeed across the Devon funds generally, underpinned by a strong team and robust investment processes. The environment this year has been a challenging one for markets, but a productive one for active investors. We would like to thank all our clients for their support. The Devon investment team remain committed to continue delivering the best outcomes possible for all our clients".
