MARKET REVIEW

In September, most spread sectors rallied against a backdrop of diverging central bank policy developments and dovish policy signals from select global central banks.

Global sovereign yields ended mixed, reflecting diverging central bank policies, inflation dynamics, and growth concerns. US Treasury yields fell, led by the 30-year tenor. Canadian government bond yields also fell after the BOC's rate cut following a weak employment data report. In Europe, German front-end yields rose while longer maturities softened slightly, consistent with the ECB's hawkish stance. The UK gilt curve flattened slightly as the BOE held rates amid inflation and fiscal uncertainty.

Global credit markets outperformed duration-equivalent government bonds over the month as spreads tightened. The financials, industrials, and utilities sectors outperformed relative to duration-equivalent government bonds. Broadly, municipal bonds underperformed duration-equivalent Treasuries. Within the securitized sectors, agency mortgage-backed securities, commercial mortgage-backed securities, and asset-backed securities all outperformed duration-equivalent government bonds.

FUND PERFORMANCE AND ATTRIBUTION

The portfolio generated a positive total return during the month and outperformed the Bloomberg Global Aggregate hedged to NZD index.

The portfolio's corporate credit positioning had a positive impact on performance overall. At the broad sector level, both high yield credit and US investment grade corporates outperformed duration-equivalent government bonds. An allocation to US and developed non-US high yield credit had a positive impact on results; these issuers include industrials and financials invested across digital divide and financial inclusion impact themes. An allocation to emerging market high yield corporates, mainly utilities and industrial issuers invested in the digital divide and clean water and sanitation themes, had a positive impact on relative results.

An overweight to agency mortgage back securities (MBS) in support of the affordable housing theme was beneficial for performance as spreads moved tighter due to risk assets rallying amid the Fed rate cut.

An allocation to taxable municipals, primarily allotted to education & training and health themes, had a positive impact on relative results.

Overall duration and yield curve positioning had a positive impact on performance.

FUND POSITIONING AND OUTLOOK*

While uncertainty around tariffs persists, fiscal stimulus, ongoing deregulation efforts, and Fed policy easing could support growth. However, the timing and magnitude of these effects remain uncertain, and political volatility continues to complicate the outlook. Inflation has moderated but is expected to reaccelerate due to renewed tariff pressures and persistent labor market constraints.

Against this backdrop, we believe that there is opportunity in active portfolio management, with nimble credit management and bottom-up, research-driven security selection being key.

In terms of positioning, the portfolio has a close to neutral credit risk profile, with a short duration posture, while preserving high-quality liquid instruments to take advantage of future market dislocations.

From a sector perspective, the portfolio maintains an off-benchmark allocation to select taxable municipals, emphasizing healthcare and education issuers. The portfolio holds select below investment-grade corporates and bank loan issuers that in our view carry attractive credit spreads.

The portfolio maintains positioning in agency MBS issuers with a focus on supporting housing affordability for low-income borrowers. We continue to hold select single-asset single borrower CMBS backed by LEED certified buildings.

The portfolio maintains exposure to labelled use-of-proceeds government and agency bonds intended to fund green, social, and sustainability related projects.

INDEPENDENT IMPACT VERIFICATION

An early mover in public-market impact investing, Wellington launched its first impact strategy in 2015 and joined the Global Impact Investing Network (GIIN) a year later. Wellington has continuously evolved to stay aligned with current best practices ever since. Wellington's commitment to ongoing improvement led the firm to independently verify that the impact investing processes of its Global Impact Equity and Global Impact Bond strategies (with combined assets under management of US$3.8 billion as at 31 December 2024) align with industry standards.

BlueMark, the leading provider of independent impact verification and intelligence for the sustainable and impact investing market, verified Wellington's practices. BlueMark assessed Wellington's practices against the GIIN's impact principles – a commonly recognized standard for impact investors, who aim to deliver market-rate financial returns alongside measurable social and environmental impact.

Wellington are thrilled to share its strong results, having earned an “advanced” or “high” rating in eight out of nine practice areas. Specifically, BlueMark:

- Highlighted a granular, bottom-up, integrated approach to impact diligence.
- Acknowledged strong collaboration among various teams across the firm, who work with impact portfolio managers to ensure that each underlying holding meets the respective fund's impact criteria.
- Assessed impact monitoring as “advanced,” citing Wellington's annual reporting of impact KPIs and an internal feedback loop that ensures insights from impact data analysis can help influence research and engagement priorities for Wellington's impact funds.

While proud of these achievements and BlueMark verification, Wellington also recognizes the importance of continued diligence and improvement. For example, Wellington plans to focus on the better sharing of lessons learned between the impact investing teams.

Looking forward to the next decade of impact investing, Wellington remains committed to advancing its impact measurement and management practice. Aligning with industry standards and best practices can not only help Wellington attract capital to public-market impact investing and deliver competitive outcomes for clients, but can help ensure that the firm is making a meaningful, quantifiable difference for society and the environment.
